SIXTY-SEVEN MERCHANTS

MAKE UP CHARTER MEMBERS OF MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION

Ask the Borough to Make Concrete Pavements in Square and W. M. R. R. for Better Schedule.

The Retail Merchants Association met on last Friday evening and the announcement was made by Secretary Kieffer that nine new members had joined the Association, making a total of sixty seven members at the time of the completion of membership, Oct. 1. That was the date fixed for charter members at $2.00 entrance fee, after that date the regular fee of $5 goes into effect.

The Association has already shown in a number of ways the material benefit it will be to all members, a benefit far in excess of the slight cost of maintaining same. On last Friday night a directory scheme was turned down, the cost of which to any one going into same would have paid the way into the Association and more. The scheme has been tried before and the members were unanimous in the view that it was one of the schemes to be turned down as it was all out and no return for the outlay.

The Association has already done much other good work. A better train service on the Reading, with parlor car was obtained through the Association as well as a good winter schedule.

The Railroad Committee was instructed to take up a better schedule and train service with the Western Maryland and if possible a third train as at present either going down or coming up to this place a whole day must be used up. The Railroad Committee was also further instructed to take up with both railroads the matter of cheap excursion rates during the fall from Philadelphia and Baltimore to Gettysburg.

The matter of the need of better pavements in Centre Square was discussed. The pavements of the borough are in bad repair and as the most public point in the town should present the best appearance. Borough taxes have lately been paid and the Town Council should use so much of each year's taxes for permanent improvements. A motion carried unanimously that the Town Council be asked to put down concrete paving in the Centre Square, preferring such corners to begin work on where the abutting property owners will make such portion as fall upon them, so that complete concrete corners may be obtained. E. P. Wisotzkey, J. I. Mumper and Wm. Arch McClean were appointed a committee to submit the request to the Town Council at their next meeting, Tuesday evening, Oct. 5th. The property owners make eleven feet of paving in the square along their properties and balance falls upon the borough to make. It is not likely the entire four corners to be made by the borough would cost much beyond $1,000.

Barn and Stock Destroyed by Fire.

Isaiah Diller of New Oxford had a barn on his farm in Penn township near Hanover destroyed by fire last week. The bank barn, wagon shed, hog pen, corn crib and chicken house with 800 bushels of wheat, and straw 250 bushels of oats, 500 bushels of rye and about 25 tons of hay were consumed with two horses, four mules, nine cows, one bull, seven hogs and 250 chickens. The fire was discovered about 10 o'clock in the evening. Mr. Diller was informed by phone at 11 o'clock. The tenant on farm is Lawrence Keller. The burning hay and straw scattered the fire over the buildings and the flames gained such headway it was useless to make any attempt to save buildings. Some of the farming implements were saved but separator, windmill and sleigh were among articles consumed. A mare and colt, four cows, four hogs and six pigs made up list of animals rescued. A horse and buggy were stolen from farm in July and depredations committed on farm and other circumstances suggest that the fire was of incendiary origin. Mr. Diller carried an insurance in the Adams County Mutual Insurance Co. of $1500 and the produce and stock were insured in the York County Co. for $2,250, the total loss is estimated at about $6,000.

WE believe that we have everything in Ladies' & Children's Underwear, that you would likely want, including Munsing's Union Suits. It G. W. Weaver & Son.

Many Cement Pavements.

Charles E. Lady is busy putting down the cement pavement in front of the Court House ordered by the County Commissioners by reason of notice received from the borough authorities. The raise to the Court House was cut away last week so that pavement will be of one level to steps. The cutting away of the raise made another step necessary and it has been made out of cement. Within the next ten days or two weeks the work will be finished.

C. W. Stoner, Esq., has contracted with Chas. E. Lady for a cement pavement in front of his residence directly south of the Court House, which will be put down as soon as the work at the Court House is finished.

Dr. H. W. McKnight has contracted with Hanover parties for a cement pavement covering the entire front of his building in Square and on Baltimore street. The entire south west corner of the square will be concrete except such portion as borough makes.

The concrete crossings on York and Hanover streets have been completed and the approach to the new High school building is very inviting. As soon as the grass has covered the corner plot the whole place will present one of the most inviting spots in the town.

There are hundreds of square feet of poor pavement in town, who will be the next to give the public concrete paving?

WHY SALVES FAIL TO CURE ECZEMA

They Clog the Pores—Only a Liquid Can Reach the Inner Skin.

Since the old-fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin diseases. But it has been found that these salves only clog the pores and can not penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged.

This—the quality of penetrating—probably explains the tremendous success of the only standard liquid eczema cure, oil of wintergreen as compounded in D. D. D. Prescription. After ten years of cure after cure, the world's leading skin specialists have accepted this as the true eczema cure.

We ourselves do not hesitate to recommend D. D. D. Prescription at $1.00 a bottle, but for the benefit of those who have never tried the prescription, we arranged with the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago for a special large trial bottle at 25 cents on a special offer now. This first bottle ought to convince every sufferer, and, at any rate, it will surely take away the itch at once. People's Drug Store.

Story of Life of Judge Lindsey—Roosevelt in Africa—Fulton Celebration.

Judge Lindsey Tells How He Lost a Partner and Dedicated Himself to the Public Good.

I faced it alone, in my office, one day that I shall never forget—looking out of the window at a sunset that was beautiful on the mountain peaks. Gardner had cried: "Let them say what they like. Let them call me a 'tool'. I don't care. I'm going to play the game and play it to win—and there's only one way to do it—and that's to sit in with them." I could not answer him. I could only say that I would share in no more corporation fees.

From his point of view he was right; and my own point of view, I knew, was too vague and impractical to argue with him. He had all the evidence, all the tangible proofs, on his side; and I had nothing but a sort of formless hope in the right, a feeling of conscience that I could not voice, a silent reluctance to sell myself even to "gain the whole world." They had taken him up to the mountain top and shown him all the kingdoms of the earth—and he had gone from me as irrevocably as the past in which we had struggled so happily together.

A sunset, at such a moment, is a sad thing to watch. It was carrying away with it all the companionship of youth, all that camaraderie in hope and idealism in which we had lived. It was leaving me with nothing but bitter memories and a failure that almost preclude hope. And yet there burned in the sky a color of wrath that burned in me too in a hate for the men whom we had fought. Nothing was sacred to them. No one was too low for them. Laws and courts, judges and juries, politicians and gamblers, the speaker in his chair and the poor fallen creatures on the street—they debauched them all and bought and sold them all. And the youth who had ideals, who had intellect and ambition—he, too—they must have him. They must have new tools, strong tools, to replace the ones they wore out and cast aside. They had taken Gardner. He had gone. If they had done nothing else, that alone would have been enough to make me swear never to forgive them, never to yield to them—to make me resolve to oppose them, to thwart them in whatever small way might be in my small power—to make me fight in any sort of forlorn hope that some time I should see "a new birth of freedom" like a clean day arising upon us, on our city, on our Capitol, on our mountains that I watched there, almost through tears, as they grew more and more somber with the fall of night.—From "The Beast and the Jungle," EVERYBODY'S Magazine for October.

Mr. Roosevelt's Impressions of the African Game Country.

Next morning we were in the game country, and as we sat on the seat over the cow-catcher it was literally like passing through a vast zoological garden. Indeed no such railway journey can be taken on any other line in any other land. At one time we passed a herd of a dozen or so of great giraffes, cows and calves, cantering along through the open woods a couple of hundred yards to the right of the train. Again, still closer, four water-buck cows, their big ears thrown forward, stared at us without moving until we had passed. Hartbeests were everywhere; one herd was on the track, and when the engine whistled they bucked and sprang with ungainly agility and galloped clear of the danger. A long-tailed straw-colored monkey ran from one tree to another. Huge black ostriches appeared from time to time. Once a troop of impalla, close by the track, took fright; and as the beautiful creatures fled we saw now one and now another bound clear over the high bushes. A herd of zebra clattered across a cutting of the line not a hundred yards ahead of the train; the whistle hurried their progress, but only for a moment, and as we passed they were already turning round to gaze. The wild creatures were in their sanctuary, and they knew it. Some of the settlers have at times grumbled at this game reserve being kept of such size; but surely it is one of the most valuable possessions the country could have. The lack of water in parts, the prevalence in other parts of diseases harmful to both civilized man and domestic cattle, render this great tract of country the home of all homes for the wild creatures of the waste. The protection given these wild creatures is genuine, not nominal; they are preserved, not for the pleasure of the few, but for the good of all who choose to see this strange and attractive spectacle; and from this nursery and breeding-ground the overflow keeps up the stock of game in the adjacent land, to the benefit of the settler to whom the game

Fulton's Interest in Large Problems

In this time of the celebration of Robert Fulton's chief invention it should be kept in mind that he was deeply interested in the largest problems of humanity. He was not only an inventor, but a reformer, a statesman and patriot. With a splendid courage born of conviction, he enriched the world by original products, which he was pleased to term "useful arts" and sometimes "mental property." To forward his plans he gave in unstinted measure his time, his talents and his wealth. It is characteristic that in his writings he always capitalized the word "ideas" and spelled "money" with a small initial. As the world gages success, he died poor; yet as a century translates that poverty it becomes golden with the wealth of honor.

A very interesting letter of Fulton's has been found, describing the first trip of this steamboat the "Clermont."

"My Dear Sir—The moment arrived in which the word was to be given for the boat to move. My friends were in groups on the deck. There was anxiety mixed with fear among them. They were silent, sad and weary. I read in their looks nothing but disaster, and almost repeated of my efforts. The signal was given and the boat moved on a short distance and then stopped and became immovable. To the silence of the preceding moment, now succeeded murmurs of discontent and agitation, and whispers and shrugs. I could hear distinctly repeated: 'I told you it was so; it is a foolish scheme; I wish we were well out of it.'

"I elevated myself upon a platform and addressed the assembly. I stated that I knew not what was the matter, but if they would be quiet and indulge me for half an hour, I would either go on or abandon the voyage for that time. This short respite was conceded without objection. I went below and examined the machinery, and discovered that the cause was a slight maladjustment of some of the work. In a short time it was obviated. The boat was again put in motion. She continued to move on. All were still incredulous. None seemed willing to trust the evidence of their own senses. We left the fair city of New York; we passed through the romantic and ever-varying scenery of the Highlands; we desecrated the clustering houses of Albany; we reached its shores—and then, even then, when all seemed achieved, I was the victim of disappointment.

"Imagination superseded the influence of fact. It was then doubted if it could be done again, or, if done, it was doubted if it could be made of any great value. Yours, R. FULTON."

—From Alice Cary Sutcliffe's "Fulton's Invention of the Steamboat" in the October Century.

The Atrocities of the Planters in Yucatan, Mexico.

Unimaginable cruelties and tortures are being performed at the present time by fifty enormously rich benevolent planters, who dominate and control the peninsula of Yucatan, which is one of the states of the Republic of Mexico. Such is the claim of John Kenneth Turner in his article, "The Slaves of Yucatan"—which forms the first of his series on "Barbarous Mexico"—in the October AMERICAN MAGAZINE. Mr. Turner has been an actual eye-witness of the things about which he writes, and some of his statements are of a most astounding nature. He writes, in part, as follows: "One of the first sights that we saw on a henequen plantation was the beating of a slave—a formal beating before the assembled toilers of the ranch early in the morning just before the daily roll-call. The slave was taken on the back of a huge Chinaman and given fifteen lashes across the bare back with a heavy wet rope, lashes so lustily delivered that the blood ran down the victim's body. This method of beating is an ancient one in Yucatan and is the customary one on all the plantations for boys and all except the heaviest men. Women are required to kneel to be beaten, as sometimes are men of great weight. Men and women are beaten in the fields as well as at the morning roll-call. Each foreman, or capataz, carries a heavy cane with which he punches and prods and whacks the slaves at will. I do not remember of visiting a single field in which I did not see some of this punishing and prodding and whacking going on.

"I saw no punishment worse than beating in Yucatan, but I heard of it. I was told of men being strung up by their fingers or the toes to be beaten, of their being thrust into black dung-like holes, of water being dropped on the hand until the victim screamed, of the extremity of female punishment being found in some outrage to the sense of modesty in women. I saw the black holes and everywhere I saw jail dormitories, armed guards and night guards who patrolled the outskirts of the farm settlements while the slaves slept.

Thousands of Babies Saved.

Civilization has just reached a new white milestone in its progress, says Mabel Potter Daggett in "The Delineator" for October. To the sociologists has been revealed a shining truth that many things had better be prevented than cured. Hitherto one-third of the children in the United States have been born only to die before they reached five years of age. Worse yet, many more thousands have been born to live with disease and physical defect. And the appalling fact is that much of it need not have been. What a mother did not know has caused more suffering than all the medical men may mend. It used to be thought that by some special dispensation a woman got wisdom along with her child. There are great schools of instruction for other lesser callings in life, but motherhood alone has been left untaught. Now the world is awaking to the fact that the real way to get the human race right is to get it born right and brought up right.

In 1908 the New York Board of Health took the city birth registry for a directory and sent out to the homes with new babies eighty nurses to instruct the mothers in their care. Still the death angel in that year gathered in 4,500 infants, of whom 3,920 died from diarrheal diseases due to improper feeding. Last Spring these nurses were increased to some one hundred and fifty, and by the end of July the result of their labors was apparent when it was announced that the 1908 death-rate for babies was being cut in half for 1909.

The Prosperity of the Farmer.

This year we shall raise three billion bushels of corn. It is hard to realize what that means, says a writer in "Success Magazine." It is a harvest greater even than the bumper crop of 1906. These three billion bushels will be worth to the farmer over a billion and a half of dollars, or over three times as much as the corn was worth in 1896. Last year the value of all farm products in the United States was almost eight billions of dollars; this year it will be over eight billions. This is more than the entire wealth of America in 1850. In 1850 the farms of the United States were worth less than four billions, to day they are worth twenty-eight billions. Every day the farms of the country are worth $1,400,000 more than they were worth the day before.

During the next twenty years we are going to see a great revolution in farming. Agriculture is to be more intelligent and more intense, new plants are to be introduced, a better use is to be made of the land, and an acre will produce twice as much as it now produces. The benefit of this new production should not be monopolized by railroads, elevator companies and harvester trusts. It should go to the farmers and to the people, and it should show itself in better food, clothing and housing and in more wide-spread education for the great mass of us.

Curing Cold In Advance.

We get sick because we are too lazy to keep well, according to Dr. Woods Hutchinson in WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION for October. We are always looking for short cuts to health. Of reputed cures for coughs and cold, he says:

"Their name is literally legion, for hardly a drug can be mentioned, hardly a substance discovered, which is capable of either being swallowed or inhaled, that has not been recommended as a cough remedy. Eight-tenths of all colds are mild infections, which run their course until the body has time to produce an antitoxin or antibody to stop their further progress. As this process in reasonably healthy individuals is usually carried out in from four to six days, anything which happens to be given in that time stands a fair chance of getting a reputation as a cure.

"The only sure cure for colds and coughs is to avoid the infections and the foul air of ill-ventilated rooms and buildings in which they breed; to keep the body toned up to fighting pitch, by cold baths and an abundance of fresh air, especially in the bedroom; and if the infection does get a foothold to assist Nature in her fight against it by rest in the open air, and promoting elimination through the skin, bowels and kidneys.

Sunlight, food, fresh air and exercise are the only cure-alls known. Don't worry about disease and what to take when you're sick, but work for health."

DOING THEIR DUTY.

Scores of Gettysburg Readers are Learning the Duty of the Kidneys.

To filter the blood is the kidneys duty.

When they fail to do this the kidneys are sick.

Backache and many kidney ills follow:

Urinary trouble, diabetes.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure them all. Gettysburg people endorse our claim.

Mrs. H. H. Ridinger, 25 Breckenridge St., Gettysburg, Pa., says:—"Doan's Kidney Pills are by no means a new remedy in my family, as I have often used them with excellent results. Recently I suffered from a constant backache and other symptoms of kidney trouble. I at once went to the People's Drug Store and procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and it only required a few doses to relieve me. I am today without a sign of kidney complaint, thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Afraid of Ghosts

Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are afraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a fancy and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be magnified to a size equal to its terrors it would appear more terrible than any fire-breathing dragon. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe, the water we drink.

The germ can only prosper when the condition of the system give it free scope to establish itself and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, languor, restlessness, a sallow cheek, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to guard against the germ. You can fortify the body against all germs by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the vital power, cleanses the system of clogging impurities, enriches the blood, puts the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in working condition, so that the germ finds no weak or tainted spot in which to breed.
"Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients printed on its outside wrapper. It is not a secret nostrum but a medicine of known composition and with a record of 49 years of cures. Accept no substitute—there is nothing "just as good." Ask your neighbors.

Governors of Pennsylvania

ANDREW GREGG CURTIN—1861-1867.
Noted throughout the country as the "war governor of Pennsylvania," Andrew Gregg Curtin became chief executive at a time when the commonwealth was very much in need of the services of an able and patriotic man.
Serving as governor from Jan. 15, 1861, to Jan. 15, 1867, Mr Curtin's loyalty and devotion had much to do with the maintenance of the Union. He was born in 1817 in Bellefonte of Irish ancestry. After obtaining a good academic schooling he studied law and became one of the foremost lawyers and orators of the day. He assisted largely in the election of James Pollock to the governorship and was appointed by him secretary of the commonwealth.
Mr Curtin aided greatly in establishing the public schools on a solid basis.
It was through his suggestion and efforts that normal schools for the training of teachers were established in this state. His services as governor brought him a re-election. He was United States minister to Russia from 1869 to 1872.

Her Marital Recapitulation

By ANNE WARNER

(Copyright, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

Eleanor Carrick was a very bright and original woman. She had been a bright and original child, and she never left off as she grew older. From the day when she cited the Quoitplayer" as an early example of the nude, "because he had nothing on him except the quoit," until the day when she finally accepted Julius Reed for her husband, after putting him off for years "because she already had one husband," her record was one of continual brightness and originality.

She began life without any parents.
Her father died some months before she was born, and her mother died directly after learning that "it" was a girl. So the baby fell to an aunt and a grandmother to raise. They were religious and conventional, and the baby was lively and obstreperous.
Everything was hard for everybody in consequence, and as soon as they could they sent the child away to boarding school. It seemed no time at all before she was through boarding school and back on their hands.
Then they remembered that they had a distant cousin—a Mrs. Maisey—in London, and to Mrs. Maisey the aunt appealed and appealed again. In the end, Mrs. Maisey undertook Eleanor for a season, and—Mrs. Maisey being a skillful lady—Eleanor was disposed of before spring.

It was Mr Carrick who took her off
the family back and onto himself.

Mr. Carrick was an indolent gentleman of five and forty, who was lounging and yawning his way through life without any very active content or discontent with anything or anybody. He had faded blue eyes, sparsely settled hair, and a long pale mustache that he dragged opposite ways with his two hands when he was really evening himself to make an impression.
He never stayed very long in one place, nor attended much to any one idea. Of marriage he had certainly never thought seriously, therefore Mrs. Maisey thought he might be easily captured, and, being clever, she thought right, and, being thrice clever,
she captured him forthwith.

Mr. Carrick and Eleanor were alike guiltless of their mistaken marriage.
Neither one nor the other had the slightest designs thereon. It was Mrs.
Maisey who did it all, and it was she who never halted in her well-doing until in the spring the bride and groom were actually off for Brighton.
Then she drew a long breath and returned to her usual routine of living.
As to the bride and groom— Well,
it must be owned that it is one thing to be a clever match-maker, and quite another thing to be those whom she has matched.

Mr. Carrick and Eleanor discovered
this fact before they reached Brighton.
Eleanor did not know just what she had expected, but learned on the train that, whatever it was, she had not gotten it. Mr. Carrick's position was still sadder; he did not know either what he had expected, he did know that he had not gotten it, and he also learned in addition that he had got something that he had not expected into the bargain.

They spent a fortnight in Brighton, piling up marital souvenirs of the most trying kind, and at the end of the fortnight Mr. Carrick, who had never in his life done anything sudden, suddenly left for Colombo.

"When is he coming back?" Mrs.
Maisey asked.

"I don't know," said Eleanor. "He can't come back until he gets there,
and he can't get there for a month and a half, thank Heaven! Why didn't you tell me that he couldn't see a joke before I married him?"

Mr. Carrick wrote his bride one letter from Port Said and one from Colombo. Then he did not write again for a year, and then she heard no more for three years. In the meantime Julius Reed had come upon the scene and fallen in love with her.

Julius Reed was a thin, tall man, with brown eyes and no mustache. In appearance he suggested a lean and civilized Arab, and that joke was not built through which he could not see.

Mrs. Carrick had an apartment, and her aunt to live with her. If she had not also had Mr. Carrick, she could easily have had Julius Reed instead of the aunt. Everybody (with one exception) knew that. The aunt knew it. Eleanor knew it. Julius of course, knew it. Society in gene knew it.
The one exception was Mr. Carrick.
Mr. Carrick might also have known it if anybody had known where he was; but no one knew. Therefore he was left in ignorance.

The situation was very exasperat-ing to Julius Reed, because it had not needed Mrs. Maisey to put the idea into his head that he wanted to marry Eleanor. He had had it, and had had it strongly, ever since their first meeting. She suited him exactly. She was a constant joy to him.

"Why don't you get a divorce?" he had asked the third time they met.

"How egotistical you are!" she had replied.

In the mutual laugh that followed his first declaration and her reply to it.

Then, one night, just as she was dressing for a ball, Mrs. Carrick received a letter from Rohilla Land stating that her husband had died some time previous.

"Now, this is a nice time for me to hear of it!" the widow reflected. "My skirt is on, even my waist's off, and I'll have to pay for the carriage anyhow."

She re-read the letter, and found that it was over four months since the sad event had transpired. The news appeared to have been forwarded by donkey-post.

"I'm sure I don't know what to do,"
she reflected further, and then she allowed the maid to finish dressing her while she read the other letters.

When all was finished she locked the whole mail away and put off further consideration until to-morrow.

"It's nobody's business but mine, any way," she said to herself, and went on to the ball. The news seemed to give an added zest to her anticipations, which were always high where pleasure was concerned. And in a little while she found herself reasoning that, since she had been a widow without knowing it for four months, she might very justifiably go on being a widow without any one else knowing it.

Julius Reed was at the ball.

"If he knew!" she thought, and the thought solidified her glimmerings of reservation into a most utter intensity.

She told no one of the letter, and continued the usual routine of her routs and routes. Her sense of huband lately." Julius Reed asked with a jerk one day. Any reference to her husband always came out of him like a steeze.

"Not very lately," she said.

"How long since he's written you?"

"Years!"—and that was quite true.

"Do you suppose he'll ever write again?"

Eleanor considered a little. "I should be awfully surprised if he did," she said at last.

"You could get a divorce now," said Julius Reed. "You really could."

"I shouldn't think of that," said Eleanor. It would be too silly—all things considered.

Then he screwed his glass firmly into his eye.

"If your husband was dead—" he said slowly.

"Yes, I know all that," she interrupted. "I have known for a long time. It would be no news to me, I assure you."

"Would you marry me then?"

"I've been wondering that ever since I first knew."

Julius' eyebrow took a fresh grip on his glass.

"What do you think about it?" he asked hoarsely.

She looked at him. It was now a full year since Mr. Carrick's demise.

"Your husband really cuts no figure in your life," said Julius presently.

"To all intents and purposes, he's dead."

She nodded.

"If any one was to tell you that he really was dead, you would not receive any shock?"

"No, that's true," she said thoughtfully.

"It wouldn't alter your daily life at all."

She shook her head.

"Then why not get a divorce and marry me?"

"I don't like the idea of a divorce—
it seems so unnecessary."

"You couldn't be married legally without it."

She looked at him and laughed.

"I see nothing to laugh at," said Julius Reed.

"Forgive me," said Mrs. Carrick,
"but I do."

She went to her desk and unlocked
one of the drawers and took out a paper—a letter with a foreign stamp.

"Suppose you announce it," she said, handing it to him. "I'll go to Monte Carlo until the worst of the blow is over, and then—"

Julius had opened the letter and was reading it rapidly. "And then?"
he said absent-mindedly—for the letter paralyzed him.

Mrs. Carrick laid her hand lightly on his shoulder. "Then I'll come back to Paris and buy my trousseau," she said slyly.

Julius's eye-glass fell abruptly.

So did Eleanor.

The New Ten Commandments

I. Thou shalt not go away from home to do thy shopping, nor thy wife, nor thy sons, nor thy daughters.

II. Thou shalt patronize thine own merchants; that they shall not be driven from their home to find food for their children.

III. Thou shalt patronize thine own merchant, also the printer, and they shall patronize thee.

IV. Thou shalt pay thy bills promptly, that thy credit may be good in the land where thou dwellest, and thy neighbor greet thee gladly;
then deposit thy surplus in home
banks.

V. Thou shalt not knock the props from under thine own town, in order to be revenged upon thine enemy, lest thou perish with him.

VI. Thou shalt not incline thine ear to the voice of pidle, nor permit vanity to overcome thy heart.

VII. Thou shalt spend thy earnings at home, that they may return whence they came, and give nourishment to such as come after thee.

VIII. Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy town wherein thou dwellest, but speak well of it in the ears of all men.

IX. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's seed, wheat nor his meat hog, nor the cow, nor the corn which is in the crib, but whatsoever thou desirest thou shalt buy of him, and thou shalt pay the price thereof in the coin of the realm.

X. Thou shalt keep these commandments and teach them to thy children unto the third and fourth generations, that they may be made to flourish and wax rich while thou art laid to rest with thy fathers. —

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

The proposed Constitutional Amendments to be voted upon in November should be carefully studied by every voter. They will be found on page seven. The COMPILER presents them in a shape to be easily read. Every voter should read every word in the three columns before going to the polls on November 2nd. The COMPILER proposes to support every amendment but the seventh. There is no reason why one election each year will not be sufficient for an expression of the choice of the people as to officials, State officers in even numbered years, county, borough and township officers in odd numbered years, and the one election each year to be held on the Tuesday following the first Monday in November. At present a fall election is scarcely over before the machinery must be set going for the Spring election and often the home government provided in the spring is the expression of but a fraction of the people. This apathy will disappear when there is but one election each year and that one election will catch all the enthusiasm of large tickets, combining county, borough and township officials.

Amendment Seven is objectionable in providing election officers, which the General Assembly may provide for by appointment, "laws regulating the appointment of election boards may be enacted to apply to cities only." This makes possible a law for the appointing of election officers by some power that would always be corruptible and the result would be permanent corrupt city elections before which the country would be powerless. The honest vote of the country districts would be overwhelmed in the dishonest vote of the city manipulated by corrupt election boards appointed by corrupt appointing power, and the people of Pennsylvania instead of being said to be "corrupt and contented" would be corrupt and helplessly contented. Vote No for the Seventh Amendment and Yes for the others.

NO OFF YEAR.

Any citizen who in self complacency deceives himself with the sophistry that 1909 is an off year so that he can neglect his rights of sovereignty, which his forefathers fought for and won at the price of blood, is a very sadly and badly mistaken individual. There is no off year in politics, eternal vigilance is the price of the government of the people. In the so called off year comes the election of the two most important State officers, State Treasurer and Auditor General; the official who approves the bills of the State as legal expenditures and the official who pays out the money. These positions are in fact more important to the people than some that look bigger. In what has been called an off year when the people are expected to be less vigilant the corrupt machine of this State has been able to put into these offices those who had to give an account of their stewardship in the criminal courts. Such was the wrong of commission and that this wrong was made possible was often because of the wrong of omission of the elector staying away from the polls and not casting a ballot for an honest and economical administration of the finances of the State. Don't make this mistake this year. There is no off year. This is no off year. Go to the polls and vote.

How to Serve Foods Shot from Guns

Serve them with cream, like other cereals. Or serve them with fruit.

Serve them, like crackers, in a bowl of milk. Or serve them as they are in the package.

However you serve them, you'll find them the most enticing foods that you know.

Think of whole wheat or rice kernels puffed to eight times natural size. Made four times as porous as bread.

Puffed Wheat—10c Puffed Rice—15c

These are the foods invented by Prof. Anderson, and this is his curious process:

The whole wheat or rice kernels are put into sealed guns. Then the guns are revolved for sixty minutes in a heat of 550 degrees.

That fierce heat turns the moisture in the grain to steam, and the pressure becomes tremendous.

A Doctor's PRESCRIPTION FOR PIMPLES

To remove Pimples, Blackheads, Blotches and all forms of skin eruptions, is according to a well known physician, a very easy matter; he says that many are afflicted with some one of the above ailments, and are subject to a great deal of embarrassment on account of the unsightly appearance which they present, and recommends the following simple, harmless and inexpensive treatment. Go to your Druggist and get this prescription filled: Clearola one-half ounce, Ether one ounce, Alcohol seven ounces, mix, shake well and apply to the parts affected night and morning, allowing it to remain on the skin at least ten minutes, then wipe off the powder from the skin. Use a soft cloth or sponge in applying the mixture and in from ten days to two weeks your face will be smooth and clear as a marriage bell. Get the pure Clearola, which is only put up in one-half ounce packages. Ask to see it.

What is a Limerick?

A Limerick is a jingle, a short piece of poetry generally consisting of five lines, the last rhyming with the first two. Here is a sample Limerick completed:

Her Sweetheart at Christmas did bring
A necklace, a brooch and a ring;
In return at New Year
Miss Molly said, "Here
Is your chancetowin back everything."

The Reason For It

The giving away of this large amount in prizes is made possible only through the assistance and co-operation of the large and wealthy factories we have so long represented in this section. The advertising received for our store and pianos repays us in a great measure for the large expenditure in prizes, and the people are directly benefitted. Our last contest was so very satisfactory our friends have asked us to have this one.

A Few of the Factories Represented in This Section by Us

Chickering, Kimball, Schubert, Palmer, Jacob Doll, Kroeger, Haddorf, Raymond and many others.

The first meeting of the teachers organization of Tyrone twp., met at Heidlersburg, September 25th, with the following teachers present, Misses Miller, Black, Rickrode and Wilt, Messrs. Linah, Crist and Wolf.

The meeting was called to order by chairman, and opened with music by the choir. A. G. Crist extended greetings to teachers, and all interested friends which was responded to by G. B. Linah, after which the choir sang a selection. Miss Blanche Slaybaugh then gave a recitation which was followed by an address from Prof. Berkeley of Gettysburg, taking for subject spelling, saying in part that children have three vocabularies, his ordinary or vocabulary used in ordinary conversation, his reading vocabulary, and the vocabulary which is called up in writing. He said the child should be taught to spell the words of his ordinary vocabulary, and not waste time learning to spell words that are seldom used, all may become efficient spellers if they give the subject the time and attention it deserves.

G. B. Linah and Uru. Black followed with a few remarks. After music from the choir Miss Lula Stallsmith gave a recitation which was followed by W. E. Thomas discussing the subject "Relation of Parent to the School" saying the three main constituents are 1st, punctuality, see that the children are in school not one day out of five but five days out of seven and on time; 2nd, home training, see that the child is sent to school with a mental foundation fit for the instruction they should get at school; 3rd, Go to the school and see what is being done there not only once in awhile but twice in awhile.

After a selection of music, Miss Grace Slaybaugh gave a recitation which was followed by an address from Prof. Barnet of Hanover, subject "Methods in Teaching," saying we must have information. A school cannot be successfully taught unless the teacher is well informed not only in one line, but generally. Not only must the teacher have information but discipline as well. Order should be the first rule of the school. If proper methods are used much time may be saved to teacher and pupil.

The secretary then read a letter from Supt. Roth giving suggestions for holding teachers' meetings. A collection of one dollar and eleven cents was lifted, followed by music after which the meeting was declared adjourned.

The Straban teachers met at Hunterstown, Sept. 24, 1909.

Auto School to Open.

The Fall term of the Harrisburg Automobile School opened on September 15 and one large class has already been enrolled while applications are now being received at the Harrisburg Automobile Company, at Third and Hamilton streets. Graduates of the Harrisburg Auto School are now filling positions as drivers and mechanics in many parts of the country and all who prove competent have secured splendid positions. Drivers have been employed by M. S. Hershey, of Hershey; Central Construction and Supply Co.; International Harvesting Company, and B. F. Blough, of this city. George G. McFarland, manager of the Harrisburg Automobile Company, who has personal supervision of the school says:

"It is not at all surprising that the young men of this city are giving up the hard, dirty and poorly paid work of all kinds to take up bright, clean, interesting and well paid work of being chauffeur. We have graduated a number of men in the last few months who are making $75 to $125 a month with room and board. It is very easy to learn the business in a practical school. To begin with the cost of the course is small for twenty-eight lessons, which covers the full course, and at the end of which time we guarantee a license, ready to work. We have many different models for the students to work on. Our class work is divided into seven lessons on theory, thirteen shop lessons divided into eight lessons on practical work, tearing down and building up cars. And last five shop lessons, actual practical work on cars left for repairs. Eight road lessons. This completes the course. If, however, a student happens to be slow, we will keep him until he has learned it all thoroughly, no difference how many lessons.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Schedule for the Amendments.

Section 12. That no inconvenience may arise from the changes in the Constitution of the Commonwealth, and in order to carry the same into complete operation, it is hereby declared that:—

In the case of officers elected by act of Assembly at an odd number of years shall each be lengthened one year, but the Legislature may change the length of the term, provided the terms for which such officers are elected shall always be for an even number of years. The above extension of official terms shall not affect officers elected at the general election of one thousand nine hundred and eight; nor any city, ward, borough, township, or election division officers, whose terms of office, under existing law, end in the year one thousand nine hundred and ten.

In the year one thousand nine hundred and ten the municipal election shall be held on the third Tuesday of February, as heretofore; but all officers chosen at that election to an office the regular term of which is two years, and also all election officers and assessors chosen at that election, shall serve until the first Monday of December in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven. All officers chosen at that election to offices the term of which is now four years, or is made four years by the operation of these amendments or this schedule, shall serve until the first Monday of December in the year one thousand nine hundred and thirteen. All justices of the peace, magistrates, and aldermen, chosen at that election, shall serve until the first Monday of December in the year one thousand nine hundred and fifteen. After the year nineteen hundred and ten, and until the Legislature shall otherwise provide, all terms of city, ward, borough, township, and election division officers shall begin on the first Monday of December in an odd-numbered year.

All city, ward, borough, and township officers holding office at the date of the approval of these amendments, whose terms of office may end in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven, shall continue to hold their offices until the first Monday of December of that year.

All judges of the courts for the several judicial districts, and also all county officers, holding office at the date of the approval of these amendments, whose terms of office may end in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven, shall continue to hold their offices until the first Monday of January, one thousand nine hundred and twelve.

THINGS ALL RIGHT FOR THE MACHINE

Legislation Session of 1903 an Orgle of Corruption.

SISSON AND STOBBER TOOLS

Republican Nominees Supported All the Iniquitous Legislation Introduced in the Interest of the Party Bosses.

The session of the legislature of 1903 opened auspiciously for the machine managers. The insurgent force which prevented the election of Quay in 1899 and a remnant of which caused some annoyance during the session of 1901 had been entirely obliterated in the election of 1902, when Pennypacker tooled them all; the Democratic majority had been reduced almost to a negligible quantity and the outlook for "good stealing" was exceptionally bright. The machine traders were present in full force, moreover, and the promise was that everything would go their way.

Probably no measure considered during the session attracted as much public notice as the Salus-Grady bill, commonly known as the "press muzzle," read in place in the senate by Mr. Grady, of Philadelphia, on April 7. The echo of Quay's voice pleading the statute of limitations in a Philadelphia criminal court had scarcely died out. All the machine leaders ascribed Quay's trouble to the newspapers and they were resentful. But their plans to stifle the freedom of the press met courageous and consistent opposition at every stage, and the bill had to be amended twice, postponed once and recommitted once before it got through the senate finally. On April 9, however, this sinister result was achieved, both Sisson and Stober voting for it in every form and at every stage. The final vote is recorded on page 1917 of the Journal of the Senate, though falsely indexed, for the purpose of confusing inquirers, no doubt, as on page 1828.

The session of 1903 was conspicuous for its raids on the treasury in the shape of multiplying offices and increasing the salaries of public officials. Among the incursions along those lines were the bill to increase the salaries of judges, in contempt of the constitution, Sisson and Stober both voting in the affirmative. Senate Journal, 1903, page 1627. The bill to increase the number of clerks and other employees and the salaries in the office of the attorney general, Sisson and Stober both voting for the measure. Senate Journal, 1903, page 958. The bill to create a bureau of elevator inspectors, which was simply a device to create a number of new and expensive offices to be filled by party pensioners. Sisson and Stober voted together for this measure. Senate Journal, 1903, page 662.

The bill appropriating $25,000 to erect a monument on the capitol grounds to perpetuate the memory of the late Simon Cameron excited more contempt than indignation, because the public was confident that it would fail. It passed the senate on Jan. 22, however, with the votes of Sisson and Stober in favor of it. Senate Journal, 1903, page 343.

The act of 1901 having served its purpose of permitting the machine politicians to acquire such electric railway franchises as they desired or could handle, for the time being, a bill was introduced during the session of 1903, modifying that measure. The new bill provided that before a charter for an electric or trolley railroad should issue from the state department the governor, secretary of state and attorney general should certify that it was necessary. That absurd proposition passed the senate finally on April 9, Sisson and Stober voting for it. Senate Journal, 1903, page 1827.

The Pennsylvania railroad had been carrying a white elephant for a number of years which was increasingly troublesome. When it acquired the control of the canals of the state, conditions were imposed under which it might have been required to maintain these waterways, and it had tried in various ways to relieve itself of this burden and menace.

During the session of 1903 two or three expedients were invoked. One was an act to authorize corporations to sell and transfer franchises and property to other corporations. Sisson and Stober voted for the bill. Senate Journal, 1903, page 916. It was subsequently vetoed by Governor Pennypacker, who liked to keep fresh in the corporate mind the fact that he had power.

The result was achieved subsequently in another bill, entitled "A further supplement to an act to authorize the formation and regulation of railroads," which passed the senate finally on March 31, Sisson and Stober voting in the affirmative. Senate Journal, 1903, page 1365.

One of the pet iniquities of the session of 1903 was Senator Grady's refrigerator bill. The purpose of that measure was to enable a syndicate of machine politicians to acquire a monopoly of the refrigerating business in the cities. No man can estimate the evil of such a condition. Butchers, dealers in vegetables and in fact men in every line of business would be at the mercy of such a corporation and pestilence and death would be inevitable. Yet under the spur of the party boss that infamous bill passed the senate finally, Sisson and Stober voting for it. Senate Journal, 1903, page 661.

Several attempts were made during the session of 1903 to create a monopoly with control of the water powers of the state. Such an iniquity would be scarcely less in evil consequences than the Grady enterprise. Two of these were in the form of senate bills; and another in the shape of a house bill which came over to the senate for consideration. Sisson and Stober supported all these sinister schemes. There were a number of insurance bills introduced during the session in pursuance of the plans of the insurance lobby operating in New York and Pennsylvania, which subsequently led to investigations in both states. Sisson and Stober voted for all of them.

The judicial salary bill, which increased the expenses of the courts more than half a million dollars a year was enacted during the session of 1903. Sisson and Stober voting for it, though it clearly violated the constitution of the state, and they were sworn to "support, obey and defend" that instrument. Senate Journal, 1903, page 1627.

Another attempt was made to raid the treasury through the courts by a law retiring judges at a certain age on full pay. This would have cost the people a quarter of a million dollars a year if it had passed. On final passage in the senate Sisson and Stober voted for it. Senate Journal, 1903, page 1075.

There were also three bills creating new judges considered during the session of 1903, and Sisson and Stober voted for two of them. Senate Journal, 1903, pages 1711 and 1712. The other didn't reach a roll call or, it is safe to say, they would have voted for it.

During the session of 1903 there were introduced into the senate a number of labor bills or measures in the interest of organized labor. The coal regions were especially concerned in legislation of this sort. These bills were referred to the committee on mines and mining, of which Senator Heidelberg, of Lancaster, Senator Stober's colleague, was chairman. Heidelberg consigned the bills to his "inside pocket" and couldn't be prevailed on to present them for consideration until the session had nearly come to an end.

During the period that the bills were kept in concealment efforts were made to pass a resolution to "discharge the committee from consideration of them," but without avail. Among the senators who gave moral and material support to the practice of Heidelberg were Sisson and Stober. It was the policy of the Republican legislative machine and that was paramount to justice and duty to them.

There was no trick too trifling for the machine during the session of 1903. Any expedient which worked to the advantage of the gang and made trouble for the opposition was adopted. In Philadelphia and some other cities the machine had been having trouble with men who, resenting frauds at the primary elections, would file objections to nomination papers. In most cases that was all that it amounted to. That is to say, in Philadelphia, for example, in most cases the court being in sympathy with the crooks, would dismiss the petition. Like the late Mr. Tweed, however, these leisurely gentlemen don't like to be annoyed, and they conceived the notion that if their obliging friends, the judges, were authorized to put the costs on the petitioner in such case, the annoyance would be minimized, if not discontinued entirely.

Accordingly a bill was introduced into the senate during the session of 1903 putting the costs of all such objections upon the petitioner. The purpose to foster fraud was so apparent in this measure that it is surprising that any one would be willing to introduce it. But such a person was found, and among those who voted for the bill were Sisson and Stober. Senate Journal, 1903, page 1813.

The bill to increase the salary of the state treasurer, enacted during the session of 1903, was another party necessity. While the building and furnishing of the state capitol was in progress a man of their own kind was wanted in the office of state treasurer. They are not found in every nook and corner, but William L. Mathues, of Chester, filled the bill to perfection.

But Mathues was a high-priced man and he wouldn't take the office unless the salary was increased from $5000 to $8000 a year. Accordingly the machine managers agreed to his terms, and a bill for the increase was introduced. There were objections, of course, and it was shown that the compensation for other services to the state, equally onerous and exacting, were no more generous. But the looters had to have Mathues, and the rabble were driven to consent. The bill passed the senate finally April 7. Sisson and Stober voting in the affirmative. Senate Journal, 1903, page 1673.

Citizens of Pennsylvania should be proud to vote for such men as have been nominated by the Democratic party for the several offices to be filled this year. For justice of the supreme court C. La Rue Munson is presented. He is a lawyer of great ability and experience and of the highest character for integrity and learning. The candidate for auditor general, J. Wood Clarke, Esq., is as capable as he is courageous, and the candidate for state treasurer is not only an experienced banker, but a progressive and successful business man. Neither of these gentlemen has been the slave of machine politicians or the servile instrument of partisan knaves. If they are elected the interests of the people will be conserved at every turn.

A CURIOUS COINCIDENCE

All Those Who Helped Samuel Salter to Cheat the Law and Escape Punishment for Stuffing Ballot Boxes Greatly Favored.

At the time that Samuel Salter was tried for the stuffing of ballot boxes in Philadelphia, John Weaver was the district attorney and Judge Von Moschizsker one of his assistants. Soon afterward Weaver was promoted to the office of mayor of the city and was slated for governor, which distinction he would probably have reached if he hadn't broken with the machine in the matter of the selling of the gas works.

Two of his assistants have since been promoted to the office of judge of the courts and Mr. Moschizsker is the nominee of the machine for justice of the supreme court. He probably earned the promotion in advance of his colleague by his preposterous decision affirming the validity of a law increasing the salary of judges in commission. Judge Barratt would hardly have done that absurd thing.

These incidents justify the belief that in the opinion of the machine the saving of Samuel Salter from just punishment for one of the gravest crimes in the catalogue was a valuable public service to be rewarded generously by the people. After the break between John Weaver and the machine it was openly charged and has not been denied that the district attorney's office was aware that the jury had been fixed to acquit Salter.

What part Von Moschizsker played in the farce of trying Salter after the jury had been fixed to acquit him has not been revealed. But the case could not have been manipulated as it was without his knowledge and acquiescence unless he is a born stupid.

QUAY STATUE JUST JUNK

Lies In Storage Warehouse Subject to Sale For Fees Ere Long.

Surrounded by boxes, bales, packages and bundles, the Quay statue reposes in a storage warehouse in Harrisburg—just plain junk.

Two weeks ago, in pursuance of orders from David H. Lane, one of the members of the Quay statue commission, Sculptor Bitter shipped the marble to Harrisburg, directed to Governor Stuart as president of the board of public grounds and buildings, but the latter body would not shoulder it, and placed the burden of selecting a site and installing the statue on the commission. Mr. Lane then issued orders to Mr. Bitter to plant the statue on a site selected for "Cousin Sam" statue by "Cousin Sam" Pennypacker, but Mr. Bitter has failed to move.

The Pennsylvania railroad freight officials needed the room in the freight shed occupied by the statue, and having no information where it would be called for, directed that it be taken to the Harrisburg Storage company's warehouse. There is no word from anybody whose place it is to look after it, and unless the statue is called for it will be sold for storage expenses at the expiration of the legal time limit.

Meantime the Quay statue is junk in a storage warehouse.

That Powerless Tariff Commission.

Although Taft's new tariff commission will have luxurious quarters in Washington, with a retinue of experts and clerks, with fat salaries and plenty of money for traveling abroad and at home, theirs is not going to be a bed of roses. That enfant terrible of protection, Wilbur F. Wakeman, ex-general appraiser of customs, has already opened war on the commission. In behalf of the American Protective Tariff League he proclaims its distrust and his own of the three commissioners whom President Taft has chosen to collect tariff data for use at some more or less remote period in the dim future.—Philadelphia Record.

Death of Governor Johnson.

In the death of Governor Johnson, of Minnesota, the nation loses more than a favorite son—he was a civic hero. His type of manhood, his standard of citizenship, his pluck, and his character combined to make of him not only one of the foremost figures in the public eye, but they have combined in making of his life that kind which lives for good in the hearts of the people, the kind which makes a monument of example rather than that of eulogy chiseled upon gravestones. And as was his public career, clean and courageous, so was his private life, noble and kind and Christian.—Williamsport Sun.

Wealth Wins In Both Instances.

In saying that the rich litigant has the best of it at law, the president might add that the rich lobby had the best of it in making the tariff law for which he apologized when he signed it.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

One Matter Elucidated.

President Taft's praise of Senator Aldrich shows how little a man who is drawing a salary of $75,000 a year knows of the tribulations of the ultimate consumer.—Dallas News.

Read the legislative records of A. E. Sisson and J. A. Stober which will be found in another column of this paper. These records are taken from the Journal of the Senate, the official chronicle of that body and are official and accurate. It will be seen that they voted for every iniquitous measure considered by the Senate during the sessions of 1901 and 1903.

The political conditions this year are precisely like those of 1903 when William H. Berry was elected state treasurer by nearly 100,000 majority. The same result can be brought about this year if the Democrats of Pennsylvania are equally vigilant and energetic.

The Correct Style of this Wooltex Coat will last through two seasons' service.

Roll this coat into a ball, shake it out and you will find it none the worse for its hard usage.

It is carefully modeled into shape, by hand. In no other way can such "soft tailoring" be attained.

The material is carefully chosen, of pure wool, cut with the warp to prevent any possibility of sagging.

"Nothing's too good for Wooltex"

The style in Wooltex garments is lasting style.

It is due to the use of the best materials which will not lose their look of quality, and to the painstaking hand-tailoring which will keep its shape through continuous wear during two seasons.
